Following Malgorzata Dembowska, Valerie Wilmer and Kira Tolkmitt, the fourth woman to win JF photo contest is Terri Quaye of 10 Balham Park Mansions, Balham Park Road, London SW 12 8 DY, England. For jazz lovers she is known as a fine jazz singer and percussionist. Lately she joined the Amalgam group. Terri first started photography seriously in 1971, taking advantage of the varied surroundings in which she found herself as a touring musician. Some of her studies of Black New Yorkers were used as stills in the movie "Jazz Is Our Religion".

Says Terri: "I derive most satisfaction from photographing people in their own surroundings. I find the surroundings reflect the true person inside. Also, people tend to be more relaxed on their own ground and as a result, the picture will be more revealing."
